PREMIUM BOOK FOR ALL OPEN CLASS, FFA AND 4-H PROJECTS

WELCOME

"The Idaho County Fair is "The GREATEST SHOW! and we, the Fair Board, would like to extend an invitation to everyone to come and see all that the fair has to offer. Our 4-H and FFA members have done some amazing projects this year, from market animals, to clothing, and are excited to show them off. Beautiful quilts, afghans, flowers, pictures, and other handmade items will be on display in the open class. All in hopes of a blue ribbon! Generations have been enjoying this family event for 88 years now. Come share your favorite part of the Idaho County Fair.

2022 GRAND MARSHALS: BRAD & CHAR ARNZEN

GRANGEVILLE — Familiar 4-H and fair supporters will serve as grand marshals for 2022: Brad and Char Arnzen of Grangeville will be the face of the Idaho County Fair this year.

"It means we're getting older," laughed Brad.

"It's an honor," Char added.

Brad was born in Greencreek where he attended school for six years; then, when the schools consolidated, he went on to school in Cottonwood. Brad and Char were high school sweethearts, and both graduated from Prairie High School.

After graduation, Brad worked at local ranches and then went to lineman school. Char moved to Boise, where she worked.

"I followed her," Brad smiled.

The couple married, and he began his career for Avista, working in Spokane and Orofino for about six years total before obtaining a position in Grangeville in 1986. IN 1991, they built their current home on Fish Hatchery Road.

Char stayed home to raise their three children: daughters Katie (White Bird), Maggie (Lewiston), and Rusty (Grangeville).

"I had taken care of my grandma and really enjoyed that, so in 2000, once the kids were older, I went to nursing school," Char said. Within five years, she was a registered nurse. She worked in Cottonwood at St. Mary's Hospital and Clinics and then at Gem Endoscopy in Lewiston, and retired a few years ago after 14 years in the field.

Brad retired five years ago from Avista. However, "retired" is a relative term in his life.

"I don't really like to sit still much," he laughed.

And he hasn't. He had an outfitting business he sold last year, though he still enjoys pack trips and has mules and horses. In the spring of each year, he works at his fire mitigation and brush mulching business which keeps him on the road part-time. In the winters, he works for a steelhead outfitting business out of Asotin that travels into the Hells Canyon area. He also spent 34 years on the Grangeville Border Days Committee.

Char has a greenhouse that Brad built for her, and she enjoys flower and vegetable gardening and taking care of the couple's two dogs and other animals.

They both enjoy hunting, salmon fishing, jet boating, spending time with their children and five grandchildren, and helping out daughter Katie and family on their White Bird cattle ranch.

Both Brad and Char participated in the Idaho County 4-H program growing up, which led them to enroll their own children and also serve as leaders.

The Arnzens said they believe in the 4-H program and its positive benefits for not only children, but also for families as a whole.

"It offers a positive experience for kids and their parents together," Brad said.

"And Idaho County's 4-H program is so well run," the Arnzens agreed.

In addition to their 4-H participation, they were also involved in the fair itself: Brad was on the livestock sale committee for 20 years and served on the fair board for a six-year term. Char provided her skills as clerk for the livestock sale and has worked in an advisory position for the 4-H Ambassador program.

"It's an honor to be chosen as grand marshals," the couple agreed. "We've been involved in the Idaho County Fair for many years, and we love it and look forward to it."

2022 FAIR QUEEN

Chloe Rowland

Stories by Lorie Palmer, IDAHO COUNTY FREE PRESS

COTTONWOOD — “Royalty has been a fantastic experience so far and making memories and impacting my community has all been a part of that experience,” smiled Idaho County Fair Queen 2022 Chloe Rowland. She said she enjoyed serving hamburgers at the Idaho County 4-H Party, welcoming people to the Cottonwood Buy Local Craft Fair and spending time with the community and Lewis County Royalty at the Cottonwood Lighted Christmas Parade. “I would highly encourage other well-rounded teen girls to become a part of royalty as well,” she added.

Rowland, 17, will be a senior this year at Prairie Junior-Senior High School. She is the daughter of Brent and Tara Rowland, and sister to Halee, 13, and Mikayla, 12. Her grandparents are Rex and Karla Williams of Twin Falls; Ralph and Susan Williams of Nampa and Cottonwood; and Dennis and Helen Rowland of Cottonwood.

Rowland said her favorite part of the royalty experience was the princess tea party.

“Getting to interact with everyone and meet and see all the little kids is a great experience,” she said. “It’s awesome to get to see the little kids’ faces light up when they see us, just like I know mine did when I used to see the royalty girls.”

“I always looked up to them so much and it’s really cool to get to influence the youth of Idaho County in the same way the royalty used to influence me,” she added. “The tea party was just so much fun.”

Rowland is a member of the Cottonwood Saddlery and Livestock 4-H Club. At school, she enjoys playing volleyball and being a member of Prairie League, Knowledge Bowl, HOSA and was elected president of the senior class of 2023. She has served as Idaho 4-H State Teen Association Northern District Representative, State Teen Association Steering Committee member, Leadership!Now - Idaho 4-H Leadership Program 2nd year mentor, as an Idaho State 4-H Ambassador, and Idaho County 4-H Ambassador, a Northern Counties Camp Counselor and as a 4-H club officer and teen leader. She also spends time baby-sitting and working at Cottonwood Livestock Auction.

“I have loved making unforgettable memories with the other royalty girls. We spent a lot of time working on our float. We took a dress shopping weekend trip to Boise and were back at our Airbnb and thought we were getting robbed, when really it was just the Boy Scouts collecting canned foods,” she laughed. “The next night we got to go bowling with our moms and all had a good laugh. There was also the time when Riley was giving us batting instructions and the yardstick flew out of her hands across the shop; we all laughed so hard we cried. We have had a lot of fun and I’m looking forward to the rest of the summer!”

2022 FAIR PRINCESSES

FIRST PRINCESS KAYLEE GRAVES

KOOSKIA — “I have had a really fun time this year, and would definitely encourage others to participate, not only as royalty, but 4-H as a whole,” Idaho County Fair First Princess 2022 Kaylee Graves said.

Graves, 15, is a junior at Clearwater Valley High School. She is the daughter of Doug and Susan Graves of Kooskia, and has one sister, Josie, 14. Her grandmother, Donna Graves, also lives in Kooskia.

A member of the Clearwater Valley Go-Getters 4-H Club, Graves is also involved in school volleyball and tennis, as well as KYRO softball, and in church youth group.

One of Graves’ favorite memories is the trip to Boise with the royalty court and staying in an AirBnB for a few nights. “We went there to look for dresses,” she explained.

Graves is unsure at the time where she will attend college, but plans to go into the medical field and become an orthodontist, dentist or a plastic surgeon.

SECOND PRINCESS RILEY ENNEKING

COTTONWOOD — “The best experience of the year for me was seeing all the little girls at the Princess Tea Party and getting to see their excitement about the whole thing,” smiled Idaho County Fair Second Princess Riley Enneking.

Enneking, 17, will be a senior at Prairie High School this fall. She is the daughter of Bob and Jennifer Enneking of Cottonwood. Her grandparents are Dave and Debbie Todd of Grangeville and the late Frank Enneking and Dolores Enneking of Cottonwood. Another memory that’s close to her mind is when the girls were dress shopping in Boise and someone ran up the steps of the house where they were staying. “I thought we were being robbed, but it was actually the Boy Scouts,” she laughed.

Enneking is a member of Keuterville Livestock 4-H Club, and at school, she is involved in volleyball, basketball, softball, Prairie League and Knowledge Bowl. She has two brothers, Payton Moore, 24, and Jackson Enneking, 14. When she isn’t in school, Enneking enjoys church activities, working on the family farm. and baby-sitting.

Following graduation, she plans to attend the University of Idaho and major in either prephysical therapy or history and English to become a teacher in those subjects.

Church recalls influences, mentors

GRANGEVILLE — A familiar face across the state in Idaho agriculture will bid farewell to his 39-year career at the end of August.

University of Idaho-Idaho County Extension Agent Jim Church will say goodbye to his current job as University of Idaho Extension Agent-Grangeville. However, Church said he recently accepted a promotion to interim Northern District Director for the University of Idaho Extension.

In his new role, Church will provide leadership and support for the 10 northern Idaho county extension programs. He will remain in the position until a permanent replacement is hired. Although his new job is based in Coeur d'Alene, Church will work remotely from Idaho County part of the time.

Church recently sat down to visit about his memories and those who influenced him during his life thus far.

"My number one mentor and encourager was my dad, Joe," Church smiled.

Eighth in a line of 10 children ("My mom was a saint," he laughed), Church was raised on a ranch near Fruitland.

"My dad and mom were both hard workers and taught all of us kids their values," he said.

Although the kids all had chores on the farm and ranch, they were also encouraged to enjoy and excel in sports, academics, 4-H and FFA.

Church literally began following in his father's footsteps as a child.

"Besides working on the land, my dad was an auctioneer. From the time I was knee-high, I would go to auctions with him, and I just picked it up," he recalled.

His first "sale" was one that only he and the family cows attended.

"I was out there at the feedlot, doing chores and selling those cows," he laughed.

That led to high school and church auctions, and then, years later, Church's voice became synonymous with 4-H livestock and organization auctions, including those for Sts. Peter and Paul School, Kids Klub and St. Mary's Hospital, to name a few.

Church said he knew from a young age that college attendance was expected.

By the time he was in high school, he had figured out that he would go the agriculture route. An ag science teacher in high school, Duane Tesnohlidek, and his mentoring through FFA, positively influenced Church.

"We had to learn to spell his name to pass his class, so I remember how to spell it to this day," Church smiled. Though they called him by his full name in school, following graduation, students were allowed to call him by his nickname, "Tes."

"He was a great man, teacher and mentor," Church said.

During college at the U of I, he majored in agriculture education with an emphasis

Church met Julie Lothspeich of Grangeville while they were in college; she was in the nursing program at Lewis-Clark State College.

Following his graduation in 1981, a downturn in the economy did not leave a lot of job openings. Church taught agriculture science for one year in Castleford before he took a job as an extension agent for Washington State University in Asotin, Wash.

In Asotin, Church said he had the chance to be mentored by "another great guy."

"Clint Luce was an extension agent there, and I really learned a lot from him," he nodded.

As he and Julie continued to visit her family in Grangeville, Church began to feel the area would be an excellent place to land if the opportunity ever arose.

"After four years in Asotin, an extension job in Grangeville came open, and I've been here 35 years," he said.

The Churches raised three sons, all of whom graduated from Grangeville High School: Dave, Kevin and Joe. Now, two are in the medical field, and one is in agriculture. All are married, and the Churches have six grandchildren. After 41 years as a registered nurse, Julie retired from St. Mary's Hospital in Cottonwood.

While his sons were in high school, Church had an ag program on local KORT radio. At the time, Dave Williams was broadcasting area high school sporting events.

As the extension agent in Idaho County, Church has served as the animal science expert for the region and has traveled in the state and beyond to offer educational programs and conferences.

Church has had the chance to work with students throughout the region through 4-H, FFA, and specifically at the Idaho County Fair and the Idaho County 4-H Horse Show each year. He also started the Idaho Young Cattle Producers Conference at the state level as part of a leadership training program.

"I enjoy helping people," he said. "I have had the occasion to do that for almost 40 years, and I'm so thankful."

He said he will miss people in that capacity and the people he works with.

"I've worked with Susie Heckman [Idaho County 4-H Program Director] for 34 years," he said. "Working with her and Jill Bruegeman [Idaho County Extension Office] — well, I don't know how I got so lucky. They are both the best."

In retirement, Church plans to raise some of his own cattle again.

"And I'll find out where else I fit in, in the community, in time," he said.

As far as whoever will take on his job, Church said, "It will be good."

"Someone younger, new blood," he nodded. "Change is good."

IDAHO COUNTY 4-H

AMBASSADOR PROGRAM

The 2022 Idaho County 4-H Ambassadors

Ambassadors are 25 years strong

Story by Lorie Palmer, IDAHO COUNTY FREE PRESS

IDAHO COUNTY — Have you seen those high schoolers at the fair in their green shirts and khaki pants? They're more than a fashion statement — they're at the heart of what keeps the fair running smoothly.

The brainchild of former University of Idaho extension agent, Mary Schmidt, the Idaho County Ambassadors made their debut in 1997.

Twenty-five years later, Idaho County 4-H Program Director, Susie Heckman, said she thoroughly appreciates the work Idaho County 4-H Ambassadors provide.

"I count on them, especially during the fair," she said. "They work hard. They are kids who lead very busy lives yet take time to make the commitment to community service."

This year's group consists of Harlee Brannan, Kieran Gallagher, Olivia Klapprich, Rayne Martinez, Owen McIntire, Brooke Romney, Rebecca Seubert, Rachel Sonnen, Raney Walters and Makenna York.

The group started, Heckman explained, as a way to retain older 4-H kids in the local clubs.

"We didn't want to take them out of their clubs, because they are mentors and leaders in those groups and are needed there," she said.

Those who are Ambassadors must maintain membership in their chosen club(s), be a sophomore through senior in high school (public, private or home-schooled), and have been a member of 4-H for at least four years.

Those who qualify — up to 10 per year — and are interested apply and interview for the extracurricular honor.

"These kids are the face of what goes on in 4-H, as well as the help — the volunteers — for many county events, including the Idaho County Fair," Heckman said.

For information on the program, contact Heckman at 208-983-2667.

OPEN CLASS RIBBON AWARD POLICY

The Idaho County Fair Board welcomes all open class exhibitors; you do NOT need to be a resident of Idaho County. If there are questions, please contact Alicia Jones, Open Class Fair Superintendent at (208)451-3152 or amasker99@yahoo.com. In the Open Class Exhibits only the best in a category receive ribbons, 2 ribbons of each color will be awarded if warranted. The policy in Idaho County is as follows:

BLUE RIBBON - Best quality exhibit

RED RIBBON - Next best in quality

WHITE RIBBON - Third best in quality

BEST OF SHOW RIBBON - Awarded for superior quality for entire category

AWARD OF MERIT RIBBON - Awarded for exceptional quality for entire category

An exhibitor may receive only two ribbons in a category. No ribbon need be given if the judge feels the exhibits are not worthy of an award. Best of Show and Award of Merit Ribbons will be awarded only to Blue Award Exhibits.

Each judge has the option to choose the one superior quality and one exceptional quality exhibit in the class (if there is merit) to receive a Best of Show and Award of Merit Ribbon. There is no extra money for this award.

NO EXHIBIT SHALL BE REMOVED BEFORE 4 P.M. ON SATURDAY.

WHEAT GROWER AWARDS will be given in Baked Goods. The judge is to pick a first and second in Breads, Cakes, Cookies, Pies and Sourdough. The winner in this MUST be a blue ribbon exhibitor. If there is not a blue ribbon winner, then no award is given.

BALL & KERR AWARDS will be given in Food Preservation.

The judge is to pick a first and second place in Fruits, Vegetables, Pickles, Soft Spreads (Jams, Jellies) in the Adult and Jr. Division Food Preservation. If there is not a winner then no award is given.

THE GREATEST SHOW DIVISION

Superintendent , Margaret Munson

This category is what makes the Idaho County Fair Great! It comes from any of the categories listed in the Premium Open Class Divisions that represent the theme of Idaho County Fair, "The Greatest Show". We are looking for vintage, velvet, dark colors, lace, or anything that represent the theme. A person may only enter once for this division. Three top cash prizes will be awarded in this division.

ART DIVISION

Central Idaho Art Association

Linda Stubbers, Chairperson
